CHANGE

In The Sheriff's Office of Lawrence County.

On last Friday night County Judge Thompson appointed D. J. Burchett, Jr., to the office of Sheriff of Lawrence county.

The office had become vacant by the failure of Sheriff H. B. Salter to give bond for this year. The limit fixed by the new law for giving bond is March 1st.

Mr. Burchett has not yet decided whether he will accept the position. He will reach a decision within a few days.

Mr. Salter says he will complete his settlement with the county within a short time.

Slick Job.

Some friends of the prisoners confined in the jail at Williamson pulled off a slick job there a few nights ago. About eleven o'clock the town resounded with the piercing screams of a woman in the east end of the city. Everybody who was up rushed to the scene of the supposed attempt to kill, and many who had gone to bed scrambled into a few clothes and joined the crowd. Much time was spent in trying to discover the source of the midnight alarm, and when the unsuccessful hunt was ended and the crowd homeward plodded their way it was only to find that six prisoners had broken jail and made their escape. The commotion in one end of the town was purposely caused, and under its cover the birds broke through their cage and made good their escape.

To Farmers.

The Louisa Canning Co. has appointed J. P. Gartin manager of the season of 1907. He will make contracts for Tomatoes, Beans, Pumpkins, Beets and other vegetables. The farmers will do well to see him and make contracts. He is now prepared with blanks and prices. See him and contract. He wants at least one hundred acres of tomatoes and fifty acres of beans. The season is now on and it will soon be time to sow seed and prepare ground for cultivation. The Company hopes to make this the biggest run the factory has ever had, and asks the assistance of the farmers in this enterprise.

Louisa Canning Co.

Blevin's Pettries.

Conductor Frank Blevins has two magnificent grey fox skins which he has just taken home. These skins are very valuable, as the grey fox is almost extinct. The animals, from which these skins were taken, were killed by Harry Stafford, of Paintsville.

Capt. Blevins has a number of wildcat skins, which he also secured from the upper Big Sandy valley, and for which he has refused a considerable sum. He will have the fox skins made into rugs.

Return of the Pilgrims.

Dr. M. G. Watson and C. T. Rule returned Saturday from an extended tour of the West and Southwest. They are hale and hearty, increased in avoirdupois and experience, and glad to again put foot on the soil of their Old Kentucky Home. They report Alex. Lackey and other ex-Bandians well, but with a longing for Sandy. Mrs. Stewart and Vivian are in Southern California and will return about April first.

Bob Steps High.

That is, Bob Dean does. It's a girl, born Feb. 25, but the NEWS did not hear of it until yesterday. Bob is no longer a spring rooster—at least not last spring's—and here's hopin'. Edna Leighton—that's her name—will live to brighten his declining years.

Sam Peters, of Fort Gay, who was a visitor at the Thompson Hotel, in Kenova, a few days ago, accidentally took an overdose of strychnine and for several hours his life was despaired of, however by the heroic work of Drs. Miller and Goff he finally recovered, and left yesterday for his home.—Tribune.

Entertained the Visitors.

Last Friday afternoon Mrs. Chas. Abbott and Mrs. C. J. Carey, at the home of the latter, entertained some Louisa visitors very charmingly. They were Miss Ada Johnson, of Cyrus, and Miss Julia Frye, of Central City. It was a Fitch party, and the games were many and exciting. So warm were the contests that the fair guests—it was a "dove" party—grew hungry and thirsty, but the abundant and delicious refreshment offered would appease the appetite and thirst of the most fastidious. It was a most delightful occasion, enjoyed to the utmost by every participant.

In the evening of the same day Misses Frye and Johnson were guests of honor at an entertainment given by Miss Lella Snyder. This was a "Contest" affair, and it afforded great amusement for all.

"Put what did they have?" O, well, as at the function just spoken of they had everything nice. You can safely bet that when a Louisa matron sets out to entertain her or her daughter's friends the big pot and the little, one, the chicken and the ice cream freezer will play their parts and all will eat, drink and be merry. That's the true story of all Louisa entertainments.

Will Accommodate Several.

Mrs. Hager has rented and moved into the large Fitch house on upper Franklin street and has fitted it up as a dormitory and boarding place for students of the Normal College. This house is a roomy, commodious building, and those who trust themselves to Mrs. Hager's care will be well taken care of. In this connection the NEWS will say that all the affairs of the College are flourishing. The crowd of students does not lessen in number or enthusiasm, and everybody, student, citizen, patron, is entirely satisfied. Each is helping the other all working for each other's good.

The Corwin Entertainment.

The entertainment at Masonic Opera House Tuesday evening was very much enjoyed by the large audience. Mr. Corwin proved a very interesting feature. His powers of mimicry are remarkable. Miss Kate Freese rendered some beautiful solos, were well received, as they always are.

There was some confusion as to the date of the entertainment, but this was due to an error on the part of Mr. Commack, of Huntington, who made the date for Mr. Corwin.

Your Lot Not So Bad.

Most people think their lot in life is hard, and worry over what they cannot help. What do they think of the affliction laid upon the family of John Rice, in Eastall county? His wife is confined in the pest house, all of small pox, his daughter is at the point of death from typhoid fever, and Rice himself was accidentally burned to death in a shanty on a raft of logs in the Kentucky river last Saturday night.

Achie Mansfield, aged ten, son of Stanley Mansfield, of Ashland, was killed in that city Sunday. C. & O. passenger No. 3 caught him and mangled him on the iron rails, Sunday afternoon, at the overhead crossin just inside the eastern city limits.

The body of the child was in a horrible plight when found. A ghastly hole had been cut in the back of the head near the crown, and the brains had been spattered over the rails and ties for a distance of several feet.

Scree boys were fined and some imprisoned, recently for jumping on and off moving trains. There are lots of one-armed, one-legged men who lost their limbs in attempting to get on or off a train while it was in motion, but this is not a very effectual lesson. A trunk strap or a barrel stave applied to the part furnished by nature, is often very efficacious.

A letter has been received from Miss —, who is at present residing in Winston-Salem, N. C., where she fills an important position in a ready-made Ladies' furnishing establishment.—Cattlettsburg Tribune. Now what are ready-made Ladies?

We have no assurance of being able to continue this offer for any considerable time, so it will be advisable to take advantage of it at once.

Entertained Two Clubs.

Mrs. Robt. L. Vinson entertained the Gossip and Fitch Clubs and a few other friends at her palatial home Wednesday afternoon. Progressive Fitch occupied most of the time and the guests entered into the game with the usual spirit.

The rooms were decorated with ferns, and there was a profusion of carnations and roses in evidence. Each guest was given a beautiful rose. Refreshments were served and the menu was a delightful combination of choice delicacies. There were salads and sandwiches, pickles and olives, almonds, brick ice cream, cake and coffee.

Those who were fortunate enough to be guests say that a more delightful affair has not been given in Louisa.

Women's Missionary Society.

This important auxiliary to the church held its regular monthly meeting with Mrs. M. F. Conley Tuesday afternoon. Besides the routine business for the month the annual election for officers was held with the following result: President, Mrs. H. C. Sullivan; 1st vice - President, Mrs. O. F. Williams; 2nd V.-P., Mrs. R. T. Burns; Recording Sec'y., Mrs. F. T. D. Wallace; Cor. Sec., Mrs. William Justice; Treasurer, Mrs. M. F. Conley, and Literary Agent, Mrs. J. L. Carey.

Rafts and Steamboats.

The recent heavy rains brought up the river considerably. A great many rafts went out and the Cando passed up and down. Several rafts tied up at Louisa one night, making things look something like the old days. But the men were very quiet and orderly. They made several purchases of the necessities, — not including big juice—and went their several ways.

Fireman Hurt.

George J. Martin, an N. and W. freight fireman, met with a painful accident Saturday at Glenn Hayes, W. Va. He had reached the top of a water tank to look after giving the engine water and missed his footing. He fell on his side and hit and bruised himself so severely that a substitute had to finish his run. No bones were broken.

Mrs. James A. Hughes, wife of Congressman Hughes, who was called home several days ago by the illness of her brother, Boyd Vinson, regrets that his illness will prevent her joining the party of congressmen and their wives, who will leave this week for Panama, where they will inspect the work being done on the canal. Mr. Hughes is a member of the committee, and Mrs. Hughes has made arrangements to accompany him.—Independent.

Miss Maude Mead and Milt Pickle-timer were married February 28. Parental authority tried to block the way, but "Love laughs at locksmiths," and carpenters, and the couple went to Busseyville where the not matrimonial was tied by the Rev. Wm. Pigg.

W. F. Peck, of this county, has purchased a farm in Oklahoma and will move to that place next fall. He is one of our best citizens and his many friends regret to see him leave Kentucky. He recently sold his farm to T. S. McClure.

The Council.

The regular monthly meeting of the City Council occurred last Tuesday night, Mayor Augustus Snyder in the chair. About the only business outside the routine transactions was the consideration of a proposition made by the C. and O. railroad company concerning the macadamizing of Jefferson street. The company agrees to macadam this street from the Louisa Mill to a point near the residence of D. J. Burchett Jr., if the city will do the necessary grading. A committee was appointed to inquire into the expense involved, with instructions to report at the next regular meeting. The material to be used in the work is to be furnace slag. The necessary grading should cost very little as the dirt to be removed would probably pay the cost.

The big stones now used to beautify the street near the Brunswick corner might possibly be spared to help fill in the gaps and low places which might be made during the improvement of Jefferson street.

He Wants to Know.

In looking over the NEWS I see that my land is advertised for sale by the Sheriff for tax. I paid my tax in Louisa to H. B. Salter August the first, 1906, and have the receipt for any one to see. What is wrong with the Sheriff that my name must go out East, West, North and South, when he has had his money for six months? If we have any Sheriff I want him to correct his mistake, and the sooner the better.

Kentucky Coal to Europe.

The Kentucky Cannel Company began the shipment of 5,000 tons of cannel coal to Spain. This coal is used for gas purposes at Cardiff and Barcelona, in Spain. Much of its by-products will come back to America in the form of lamp black, paraffine, etc. This is the first shipment the Kentucky Cannel Company has made for almost a year, and there are about 10,000 tons of this splendid coal now in stock. "It is worth its weight in gold," is almost applicable in speaking of this coal, its analysis proving it to stand at the top of all coals yet discovered.

PERT PARAGRAPHS

Picked Up At Pike, Paint and Prestonsburg.

Mrs. Anna Dils, the venerable and beloved widow of the late Col. John Dils, is critically ill at her home in Pikeville.

Rev. N. G. Grizzle has named the boy that made his appearance at his home, on Washington's Birthday, "George Washington." We congratulate Bro. Grizzle and his wife on this acquisition to their home.—Pikeville item.

By her demise, Mollie Black, black, absolutely depopulated Prestonsburg of colored women. There had never been but four colored persons in the town and three of these were men. Prestonsburg is almost without equal in this respect in the State.

B. B. Hicks has been adjudged to be a lunatic and ordered to be sent to the State Insane Asylum, at Lexington. Mr. Hicks lives on Middle creek. He has been in poor health for some time, and that, together with business reverses, is said to have caused him to lose his reason.

Robert B. Brashears, an attorney at the Whitesburg bar, well known over Eastern Kentucky, has announced his candidacy for Circuit Judge of the Thirty-second judicial district, composed of the counties of Letcher, Perry and Owsley—the new district. Mr. Brashears will have a number of opponents.

A telegram was received at Prestonsburg, from Lohpoc, Cal., addressed to Hon. F. A. Hopkins asking him to notify the mother of J. M. Hall, of his death in a railroad accident near San Francisco, where he had been employed as a signal man by the Southern Pacific. The family resides at Banner, Ky., and is prominent.

Prestonsburg, Ky., Feb. 28. — A pretty wedding was solemnized last evening at the residence of the bride's father, R. E. Stanley, of Middle creek, the contracting parties being Miss Nora, eldest daughter of Judge Stanley, and Mrs. Elliott Allen, son of Mrs. Smith Hicks. The wedding took place at 7:30 o'clock, only the relatives and immediate friends being present.

News has just reach Pikeville from John's creek of the alleged murder of Green Tackett by John McClanahan. The exact truth of the cause leading up to the tragedy has not been learned, but from what has been received there, it seems that the man charged with the killing became engaged in a drunken brawl with his victim and settled it with the rapid and certain action of a Smith and Wesson.

It is believed that both men had been drinking and met while in a quarrelsome mood.

Special Notice.

As missionary of the American Sunday School Union, it is part of my duty to organize Sunday Schools where none exist; also to aid struggling schools in different ways. This work is strictly undenominational, it does not represent any church, but on the other hand is loyally supported by all evangelical denominations. I am in a position to render the most substantial help, free of charge, to new schools and also to poorly equipped schools. If there is not prospering very well, write me telling your needs, and I will take the matter up at once. This invitation is extended to any person in any community. Whether you are a Christian or not, if you want righteousness, morality and intelligence to have larger sway, tell us your wishes, let us know your needs. A postal card will convey all necessary information from you, then I will personally take up the work.

A Four Line Sermon.

"There are thirty boys now in county jails in Kentucky awaiting to be sent to the Reform School at Lexington, which is overcrowded at present."

What a sermon to parents in these few lines! Thirty boys in Kentucky jails. Poor chaps, the fault is not wholly theirs. Ten to one their fathers allowed them to run the streets, loaf on street corners and at railroad depots, truants from school and strangers to church. Don't lay all the blame on the boys. A kind word, a firm hand, and proper chastisement when necessary might have saved them from jail, from the Reform School, and perhaps from the scaffold.

CHAPTER IX.

The Girl and the Rabbit.

Wind and rain roared in the wood, and occasionally both fell upon the library windows with a howl and a splash. The tempest had awakened me; it seemed that every chimney in the house held a screaming demon. We were now well launched upon December, and I was growing used to my surroundings. I had offered myself frequently as a target by land and water; I had sat on the wall and tempted fate; and I had roamed the house constantly expecting to surprise Bates in some act of treachery; but the days were passing monotonously. Twice I had seen the red tam-o'-shanter far through the wood, and once I had passed my young acquaintance with another girl, a dark, laughing youngster, walking in the highway, and she had bowed to me indifferently. Even the ghost in the wall proved inconsistent, but I had twice heard the steps without being able to account for them. Memory kept plucking my sleeve with reminders of my grandfather. I was touched at finding constantly his marginal notes in the books he had collected with so much intelligence and loving care. It occurred to me that some memorial, a tablet attached to the outer wall, or perhaps, more properly placed in the chapel, would be fitting; and I experimented with designs for it, covering many sheets of drawing paper in an effort to set forth in a few words some hint of his character. On this gray morning I produced this:

The life of John Marshall Glenarm was a testimony to the virtue of generosity, forbearance and gentleness. The beautiful things he loved were not nobler than his own days. His grandson (who served him ill) writes this of him 1901

I had sketched these words on a piece of cardboard and was studying them critically when Bates came in with wood.

"They're unmistakable snowflakes, sir," he remarked from the window. "We're in for winter now."

It was undeniably snow; great lazy flakes of it were crowding down upon the wood.

Bates had not mentioned Morgan or referred even remotely to the pistol shot of my first night, and he had certainly conducted himself as a model servant. The gardener at St. Agatha's, a Scotchman named Ferguson, had visited him several times, and I had surprised them once innocently enjoying their pipes and whisky and water in the kitchen.

"They are having trouble at the school, sir," observed Bates.

"The young ladies running a little wild, eh?"

"Sister Theresa's ill, sir. Ferguson told me last night. And Ferguson says that Miss Devereux's devotion to her aunt is quite touching."

I stood up straight and stared at Bates' back—he was trying to stop the rattle which the wind had set up in one of the windows.

"Miss Devereux!"

"That's the name, sir,—rather odd, I should call it."

"Yes, it is rather odd," I said, composed again, but not referring to the name. My mind was busy with a certain paragraph in my grandfather's will:

"Should he fail at any time during said year to comply with this provision, said property shall at once revert to my general estate, and become, without reservation, and without necessity for any process of law, the property, absolutely, of Marian Devereux, of the county and state of New York."

"Your grandfather was very fond of her, sir. She and Sister Theresa were abroad at the time he died. It was my sorrowful duty to tell them the sad news in New York, sir, when they landed."

"The devil it was!" It irritated me to remember that Bates knew exactly the nature of my grandfather's will. Sister Theresa and her niece were doubtless calmly awaiting my failure to remain at Glenarm House during the disciplinary year.

I had given little thought to Sister Theresa since coming to Glenarm. She had derived her knowledge of me from my grandfather, and, such being the case, she would naturally look upon me as a blackguard and a menace to the peace of the neighborhood. I had therefore kept rigidly to my own side of the stone wall.

"Bates!"

He was moving toward the door with his characteristic slow step.

"If your friend Morgan, or any one else, should shoot me, or if I should tumble into the lake, or otherwise end my earthly career—Bates!"

His eyes had slipped from mine to the window and I spoke his name sharply.

"Yes, Mr. Glenarm."

"Then Sister Theresa's niece would get this property and everything else that belonged to Mr. Glenarm."

"That's my understanding of the matter, sir."

"Morgan, the caretaker, has tried to kill me twice since I came here. He fred at me through the window the night I came,—Bates!"

I waited for his eyes to meet mine again. His hands opened and shut several times and alarm and fear convulsed his face.

"Bates, I'm trying my best to think well of you; but I want you to understand,—I smote the table with my clenched hand,—that if these women, or your employer, Mr. Pickering, or that damned hound Morgan, or you—damn you, I don't know who or what you are!—think you can scare me away from here, you've waked up the wrong man; and I'll tell you another thing,—and you may repeat it to your school teachers and to Mr. Pickering, who pays you, and to Morgan, whom somebody has hired to kill me,—that I'm going to keep faith with my dead grandfather, and that when I've spent my year here and done what that old man wished me to do, I'll give them this house and every acre of ground and every damned dollar the estate carries with it. And now one other thing! I suppose there's a sheriff or some kind of a constable with jurisdiction over this place, and I could have the whole lot of you put into jail for conspiracy, but I'm going to stand out against you alone,—do you understand me, you l porcite, you stupid, slinking spy? Answer me, quick, before I throw you out of the room!"

I Smote the Table With My Clenched Hand.

I had worked myself into a great passion and fairly roared my challenge, pounding the table in my rage.

"Yes, sir; I quite understand you, sir. But I'm afraid, sir."

"Of course you're afraid!" I shouted, enraged anew by his halting speech. "You have every reason in the world to be afraid. You've probably heard that I'm a bad lot and a worthless adventurer; but you can tell Sister Theresa or Pickering or anybody you please that I'm ten times as bad as I've ever been painted. Now clear out of here!"

I knocked about the library all morning without easing my spirit, and after luncheon I went off for a tramp. Winter had indeed come and possessed the earth, and it had given me a new landscape. The snow continued to fall in great, heavy flakes, and the ground was whitening fast.

A rabbit's track caught my eye and I followed it, hardly conscious that I did so. Then the clear print of two small shoes mingled with the rabbit's trail. A few moments later I picked up an overshoe, probably lost in the chase by one of Sister Theresa's girls. I reflected. I remembered that while at Tech I had collected a diversity of memorabilia from school girl acquaintances, and here I was beginning a new series with a string of beads and an overshoe!

A rabbit is always an attractive quarry. Few things besides riches are so elusive, and the little fellows have, I am sure, a shrewd humor peculiar to themselves. I rather envied the school girl who had ventured forth for a walk in the first snow storm of the season, and recalled Aldrich's turn on Gautier's lines as I followed the double trail:

"How'er you tread, a tiny mould betrays that light foot all the same; Upon this glittering, snowy fold At every step it signs your name."

A pretty autograph, indeed! The snow fell steadily and I tramped on over the joint signature of the girl and the rabbit. Near the lake they parted company, the rabbit leading off at a tangent, on a line parallel with the lake, while his pursuer's steps pointed toward the boat house.

There was, so far as I knew, only one student of adventurous blood at St. Agatha's, and I was not in the least surprised to see, on the little sheltered balcony of the boat house, the red tam-o'-shanter. She wore, too, the covert coat I remembered from the day I saw her first from the wall. Her back was toward me as I drew near; her hands were thrust into her pockets. She was evidently enjoying the soft mingling of the snow with the still, blue waters of the lake; and a girl and a snow storm are, if you ask my opinion, a pretty combination. The fact of a girl's facing a winter storm argues mightily in her favor,—testifies, if you will allow me, to a serene and dauntless spirit for one thing, and a sound constitution for another.

"I ran up the steps, my cap in one hand, her overshoe in the other. She drew back a trifle, just enough to bring my conscience to its knees.

"I didn't mean to listen that day. I just happened to be on the wall, and it was a thoroughly underbred trick—my twitting you about it—and I should have told you before if I'd known how to see you—"

"May I trouble you for that shoe?" she said with tremendous dignity. They taught that cold disdain of man, I suppose, as a required study at St. Agatha's.

"Oh, certainly! Won't you allow me?"

"Thank you, no!"

She took the damp bit of rubber—a wet overshoe, even if small and halloved by associations, isn't pretty—as Venus might have received a soft-shell crab from the hand of a fresh young merman. I was between her and the steps to which her eyes turned longingly.

"Of course, if you won't accept my apology I can't do anything about it; but I hope you understand that I'm sincere and humble, and anxious to be forgiven."

"You seem to be making a good deal of a small matter—"

"I wasn't referring to the overshoe!" I said.

She did not relent.

"If you'll only go away—"

She rested one hand against the corner of the boat house, while she affixed the overshoe to her foot. She wore, I noticed, brown gloves with cuffs.

"How can I go away! You children are always leaving things about for me to pick up. I'm perfectly worn out carrying some girl's beads about with me; and I spoiled a good glove on your overshoe."

"I'll relieve you of the beads, if you please."

She thrust her hands into the pockets of her coat and shook the tam-o'-shanter slightly, to establish it in a more comfortable spot on her head. The beads had been in my corduroy coat since I found them. I drew them out and gave them to her.

"Thank you; thank you very much."

"Of course they are yours, Miss—"

She thrust them into her pocket.

"Of course they're mine," she said indignantly, and turned to go.

"We'll waive proof of property and that sort of thing. I'm sorry not to establish a more neighborly feeling with St. Agatha's. The stone wall may seem formidable, but it's not of my building. I must open the gate. That wall's a trifle steep for climbing."

I was amusing myself with the idea that my identity was a dark mystery to her. I had read English novels in which the young lord of the manor is always mistaken for the game-keeper's son by the pretty daughter of the curate who has come home from school to be the belle of the county. But my lady of the red tam-o'-shanter was not a creature of illusions.

"It serves a very good purpose—the wall, I mean—Mr. Glenarm."

She was walking down the steps and I followed, pleased to hear my name from her lips. I am not a man to suffer a lost school girl to cross my lands unattended in a snow storm; and the piazza of a boat house is not, I submit, a pleasant landing place on a winter day. She marched before me, her hands in her pockets—I liked her particularly that way—with an easy swing and a light and certain step. Her remark about the wall did not encourage further conversation and I fell back upon the poets.

"Stone walls do not a prison make, Nor iron bars a cage."

I quoted.

"I have heard that—before!" she said, half turned her face and laughed as she hastened on.

Her brilliant cheeks were a delight to the eye. The snow swirled about her, whitening the crown of her red cap and clung to her shoulders. Have you ever seen snow crystals gleam, break, dissolve in fair, soft storm-blown hay? Do you know how a man will pledge his soul that a particular flake will never fade, never cease to rest upon a certain flying strand over a girlish temple? And he loses—his heart and waver—in a breath! If you fail to understand these things, and are furthermore unfamiliar with the fact that the color in the cheeks of a girl who walks abroad in a driving snow storm marks the favor of heaven itself, then I waste time, and you will do well to rap at the door of another inn.

"I'd rather missed you," I said; "and really, I should have been over to apologize if I hadn't been afraid."

"Sister Theresa is rather fierce," she declared. "And we're not allowed to receive gentlemen callers—it says so in the catalogue."

"So I imagined. I trust Sister Theresa is improving."

"Yes, thank you."

"And Miss Devereux—she is quite well, I hope."

She turned her head my way as though to listen more carefully, and her step slackened for a moment; then she hurried blithely forward.

"Oh, she's always well, I believe."

"You know her, of course."

"Rather! She teaches music."

"So Miss Devereux is the music teacher, is she? Should you call her a popular teacher?"

"The girls call her"—she seemed moved to mirth by the recollection—"Miss Prim and Posy."

"Ugh!" I exclaimed sympathetically. "Tall and hungry looking, with long talons that pound the keys with grim delight. I know the sort."

"She's a sight!"—and my guide laughed approvingly. "But we have to take her; she's part of the treatment."

"You speak of St. Agatha's as though it were a sanatorium."

"Oh, it's not so bad; there are worse."

We approached the gate. Her indifference to the storm, delighted me. Here, I thought in my admiration, is a real product of the Western world. I felt that we had made strides toward such a comradeship as it is proper should exist between a school girl in her teens and a male neighbor of 27. I was—going back to English fiction—the young squire walking home with the curate's pretty young daughter and conversing with fine condescension.

"We girls all wish we could come over and help hunt the lost treasure. It must be simply splendid to live in a house where there's a mystery—secret passages and chests of doubloons and all that sort of thing! My Squire Glenarm, I suppose you spend all your nights exploring secret passages?"

This free expression of opinion startled me, though she seemed wholly innocent of impertinence.

"Who says there's any secret about the house?" I demanded.

"Oh, Ferguson, the gardener, and all the girls!"

"I fear Ferguson is drawing on his imagination."

"Well, all the people in the village think so. I've heard the candy shop woman speak of it often."

"She'd better attend to her taffy," I retorted.

"Oh, you mustn't be sensitive about it! All us girls think it ever so romantic, and we call you sometimes the lord of the realm, and when we see you walking through the darling wood at eventide we say, 'My lord is brooding upon the treasure chests.'"

This, delivered in the stilted tone of one who was half quoting and half improvising, was irresistibly funny, and I laughed with good will.

"I hope you've forgiven me—"

I kicked the gate to knock off the snow, and took the key from my pocket.

"But I haven't, Mr. Glenarm. Your assumption is, to say the least, unwarranted—I got that from a book!"

"It isn't fair for you to know my name and for me not to know yours," I said leadingly.

"You are Mr. John Glenarm—the gardener told me—and I am just Olivia. They don't allow me to be called Miss yet. I'm very young, sir!"

"You've only told me half"—and I kept my hand on the closed gate. The snow still fell steadily and the short afternoon was nearing its close. I did not like to lose her—the life, the youth, the mirth for which she stood. Lights already gleamed in the school buildings straight before us, and the sight of them smote me with loneliness.

"Olivia Gladys Armstrong," she said, laughing, brushed past me through the gate and ran lightly over the snow toward St. Agatha's.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

School children in Kentucky have so far contributed $714.84 toward a State Building at the Jamestown Exposition.

John Sacra was convicted of criminal assault on Mary Gladder, at Russellville, but immediately after the verdict was rendered was spirited away to Eddyville to avoid any chance of lynching, the people of Russellville being angry because the verdict was not death. Sacra was charged with complicity in the crime, for which two men were hanged.

Owingsville, Ky., March 1.—Pearl Hughes, a woman horse thief, was tried to-day and found guilty and sent to the penitentiary for two years. It is thought Judge Young will modify the sentence and send her to the School of Reform in Lexington.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., March 2.—Armed men are on guard tonight at the county jail, prepared to resist a mob which has been expected to try to take from his cell Phil Botts, a negro, charged with attempted criminal assault on Miss Mary Prewitt, thirteen years old, a daughter of Henry Prewitt, State Insurance Commissioner. At a late hour to-night the town was quiet, and it was believed that danger from the mob had been lessened, although vigilance was not relaxed, as one could not tell what would happen before morning.

If the mob does not storm the jail it will be largely on account of the position taken by Mr. Prewitt. He was not told of the act of the mob until the latter was arrested here to-day. It was feared that Mr. Prewitt would do something violent when he learned that the negro had tried to lay his hands on the young girl, so the family kept the matter quiet.

The American Tobacco Company paid 15 cents a pound for Burley tobacco in Mt. Sterling. This is the highest price paid in several years.

Judge Jos. E. Robbins, of Mayfield, will be Special Judge of the Scott Circuit Court to preside in the next trial of the case of Caleb Powers, the Goebel murder conspirator. Gov. Beckham offered the appointment to Judge Robbins, and Judge Robbins accepted by wire. He presided at the last trial of this noted case.

The State Farmers' Institute closed its business, after a session of three days in Shelbyville, and the results are regarded as highly satisfactory to those who conducted it.

Madisonville, Ky., Feb. 23.—John Simms, a well-known farmer, who lives a few miles from here, is a believer in the Roosevelt idea about race suicide. This week a boy was born to Mrs. Simms, which makes the seventeenth child. Of the children eleven have been boys and six girls. Ten boys and five girls are living. Mr. Simms has been married twice. He is well known in Madisonville and Hopkins county, and is one of the leading farmers of the county.

One unexpected feature developed this morning. Hubert Vreeland, the Commissioner of Agriculture, was presented a handsome gold watch, the gift of the farmers who have been attending the institute. The movement started last night, and it was the result of a general desire on the part of the farmers to show some real appreciation of their regard for him and the work he has done in the commissioner's office. Subscriptions were limited in amount, the intention being to let everybody in, but some were not in time and could not participate, although they wanted to add to the amount which was fixed as appropriate. The presentation was made during the morning session of the institute and the farmers showed by their manner their interest in the young man who has been working with and for them for the last four years.

The next institute will be held in Frankfort, under the law. It is the intention to hold the meeting just prior to the legislative session, or during its opening days, so that as one of the delegates expressed it, "they can camp on the trail of the members until they get the legislation the farmers think they ought to have." It is probable that several important measures will be taken up at the next meeting and presented to the General Assembly.

Especially will an effort be made to increase the appropriation for State College so that a regular chair of agriculture and a special building for the course can be maintained at that college. The farmers will try also to get State aid for roads or provision for an amendment to the Constitution so that this may be legal.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines the duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Home Circle Column.

A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle.

Every mother has two hands, one to guide and one to bless.

The girl who is the flower of the family is the one who knows how to use the flour of the family.

Whatever happens don't become sour old man or woman. Old age should be a cheerful period of life, when the lengthened shadows are softened by the setting sun, when quiet twilight steals on apace, soon to be followed by the long night of rest which remains to all living.

The first person to whom Christ appeared after the resurrection was a woman. During all the ages that have come since that first Easter morning, whenever there was a word to be spoken for the Master, a tender service to be performed in His name, a cup of cold water to be given to some wayfarer, or a prayer to be offered for some sick soul, woman has always been the first on the scene.

Jesus called a little child to represent who should be the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven. No long-faced elder of the church was brought, nor smileless member of the monastery, but a prattling child in all its innocence and mirth; and unless we are converted from our sordid ways, and become in habits and tastes like unto a child, it is declared the door will be barred against us.

In our criticisms of others, let us remember that we have faults which our friends have to excuse. How much would be left of us if all those who see inconsistencies in us should clip away from our character and reputation? It is an invariable rule that those who make the roughest work with the names of others are those who have themselves the most imperfections. The larger the beam in your own eye, the more anxious you are about the mote in somebody else's eye.

Instead of going about town slashing this man's bad temper and the other man's falsity, and this woman's hypocrisy and that one's indiscretion, go home with the ten commandments as a monitor and make out a list of your own derelictions.

If young men wish to succeed in business, they must not spend their time and money in simply having a good time. They must not be discontented with the place in which they are in because they think they are too big for it. The way to get into a large place is to outgrow the one you are in, grow until it is so small that it will not hold you any longer.

A man who sits shrunk up and worthless in a little place, because he thinks it is not worth while to grow enough to fit that, has little prospect of getting into larger ones. Fill the place that you are in. Fit yourself for higher usefulness. To do that you must do something besides play, though that may be innocent in itself.

Infancy and Innocency are synonymous. The tiny child does not speak in vulgar or profane language, does not drink rum or use tobacco, does not cheat or wrong its companions, it only grows into these evils as it learns them from its elders; and the teacher is not unfrequently some member of the household, maybe a religious professor with his mouth stained with narcotics and his breath stained with alcohol, and his words unchaste, and his habits tricky and uncertain.

What a happy world this world would be if the innocency of childhood's tender years could be carried through age. So while we are training them in the way they should walk, let us watch our own footsteps, and not cut off their harmless mirth to suit our tastes that have grown sombre with age and care. Let us not mistake gloom for pity, or a broken spirit for gentle submission to lawful authority.

Never be ashamed of your early surroundings because you are living in a more refined place at present. Do not be ashamed of your old father and mother when they come to your city to visit because their manners are a little old-fashioned and try to snuggle them in and out of your house. Call in your best friends and say to them, "this is my father and my mother, if they had lived in your day and had had the advantage they would be as well up as you." Have you forgotten what a hard time your father and mother had in the early days of life, depriving themselves of the necessities of life in order to providing.

save and leave something for their children when they are ready to lay off their earthly toil.

"The beginning of strife is like the letting out of water," says the wise king, and in no case is this truer than in the case of family quarrels. The little breach, no larger at first than a child's finger could stop, but through which comes the continual dropping, if not attended to in time, will widen and stretch, till one fine day there is a waking up to find the angry waters surging around, sweeping in and overwhelming all the sweet peace and love and harmony of home.

There is no greater fallacy than to suppose that because people are relatives, there is less necessity for the common courtesy that is willingly extended to a stranger.

It is worse than useless to attempt to repress a girl's natural impulses. The society and companionship of the opposite sex is a perfectly natural and healthful desire. Shut her up and she escapes with a coachman—cross her in love and she may fill a suicide's grave, while the world wonders how it is possible one who "had all that heart desired" could wish to end existence. Many of our young women readers are consumed with ambitious desires—they feel the divine spark, which might be fanned into a splendid flame, but parental authority decrees they shall "fold their hands and wait," while the spark becomes dim and goes out, taking hope, perhaps life with it. Do not choose a vocation for your daughter—do not insist that she smother her ambitions and become only a lady, when she might be a genius. The talent which is repressed and strangled would electrify the world. Give it free scope and a hearty welcome.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We are authorized to announce M. M. Hedwine as a candidate to fill the unexpired term of two years as Justice of the 32nd Judicial District of Kentucky, composed of the counties of Elliott, Morgan, Carter and Lawrence subject to the action of the Democratic party of said district.

With a new record for large appropriation and important legislation the Fifty-ninth Congress adjourned Monday. The total appropriations aggregate nearly one billion dollars, which is about one hundred and ninety-eight million dollars in excess of the total of the previous Congress.

One-cent postage stamp books will be issued in a few days. There will be only one form for the present containing twenty-four stamps in four sheets of six stamps each, interleaved with paraffine paper and bound like the books of two-cent stamps. They will be sold at twenty-five cents each.

Announcement has been made at the White House that the President will appoint Senator Jo. C. S. Blackburn, of Kentucky, the Democratic leader in the United States Senate, whose time expired on March 4, a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission. As such his salary will be $7,500 a year.

There is quite a difference when it comes to being a republican or a democrat. Being a republican kept a Mormon in the Senate, and being a democrat threw one out of the house of representatives because he was a Mormon democrat. Smoot retains his seat in the senate because he is a Mormon republican.

The Louisville Courier-Journal is conducting what it designates as a "Beauty Contest," and is offering premiums amounting to $175 for the photographs of the three most beautiful women in Kentucky.

This contest was probably suggested by the contest in Chicago to discover the prettiest woman in that city. The NEWS knows several women in Louisa who would capture the Courier's prizes "hands down." But the Editor would not like to be on the committee selected to say which of the number is entitled to the first prize.

Have One Doctor

No sense in running from one doctor to another. Select the best one, then stand by him. Do not delay, but consult him in time when you are sick. Ask his opinion of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs and colds. Then use it or not, just as he says.

We publish our formulas
We banish alcohol
from our medicines
We urge you to consult your doctor

Always keep a box of Ayer's Pills in the house. Just one pill at bedtime, now and then, will ward off many an attack of biliousness, indigestion, sick headache. How many years has your doctor known these pills? Ask him all about them.

Service Pension Act.

Applications for blanks for the purpose of applying for pensions under the Service Pension Act of February 6 last have been pouring in to the agency for the last few days. Maj. A. T. Wood, pension agent, said that he had no idea that the announcement that application blanks could be had at his office would bring such a flood of requests for them.

The soldier who desires a pension under the new act simply secures a blank and has it filled out by a notary public or any office of similar qualification. No attorney or any person is allowed a fee in connection with the obtaining of a pension. Major Wood said that he had no idea that three were so many soldiers entitled to a pension under the new act.

PORT RILEY, KANS.

Permit me to reveal myself to my friends through the valuable columns of your paper. I am now at Fort Riley, Kansas, a snug post, hidden back between the foothills and the broad Kansas river.

Fort Riley proper is one of the largest posts of the U. S. army, built of limestone and resembles a small village of some two thousand inhabitants, there being one regiment of cavalry, five batteries of light artillery and extra strong hospital corps, some fifty or sixty other employes and a complete non-com officers staff. There is also a detachment of student officers, farmers, blacksmith and a training school for cooks and bakers, all combined amounting to some three hundred students.

The Ft. Riley reservation of something over 25000 thousand acres affords one of the best maneuvering grounds of the U. S. Army.

It also affords one of the best National target ranges Uncle Sam's boys are permitted to shoot upon. Ft. Riley is known for its many historical landmarks. The monument marking the geographical center of the U. S. the Wounded Knee Monument and the old building used as the first capital of the territory of Kansas, erected in 1859.

Arriving here you are in the center of the post, where a glance will reveal the fact that you are only on a very low foot hills compared with the back ground of the West. The first attraction is the large reservoir which furnishes an abundance of pure well water which is piped into every nook and corner of the post. It also furnishes a perfect fire system. As an idea to the accommodation we are blessed with I will say that the horses and mules quarters are much better than many homes of people I have seen. There is no prettier sight than "retreat." Standing in front of your barracks while the band plays that national air "The Star Spangled Banner," and the flag which has waved its stars and stripes through their day is slowly lowered, to be folded away while the stars of heaven reign at night.

Cleveland Queen.

Nasal Catarrh, an inflammation of the delicate membrane lining the air-passages, is not cured by any mixtures taken into the stomach. Don't waste time on them. Take Ely's Cream Balm through the nostrils, so that the fevered, swollen tissues are reached at once. Never mind how long you have suffered nor how often have been disappointed, we know Ely's Cream Balm will cure you as it has cured others by the thousand. All druggists, 50c. Mailed by Ely Bros., 66 Warren street, New York.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.

Every woman naturally should be healthy and strong, but a great many women, unfortunately, are not, owing to the unnatural condition of the lives we lead. Headache, backache and a general tired condition are prevalent amongst the women to-day, and to relieve these conditions women rush to the druggists for a bottle of some preparation supposed to be particularly for them, and containing—nobody knows what. If they would just get a box of Branderth's Pills, and take them regularly every night for a time, all their trouble would disappear, as these pills regulate the organs of the feminine system. The same dose always has the same effect, no matter how long they are used. Branderth's Pills have been in use for over a century and are sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar-coated.

A land case in which the title to some 3000 acres of the most valuable coal land in Logan and Wyoming counties is involved was recently argued before Judge Wilkinson at Logan. The land is worth several hundred thousand dollars and a favorable decision by the court means a handsome sum for Fayette parties interested in the suit.

The land is known as the Christian estate and comprises 3900 acres lying at the mouth of Elk Creek, and extending along Elk for over three miles.

Some one shot into the dwelling of Rev. J. R. Campbell, a minister of the Christian church who lives near the N. and W. station in Ceredo, last Saturday night about half past nine o'clock. The bullet which from the hole it made, was evidently from a 38 calibre revolver, went through the weatherboarding and lodged against the plastering near the bed in which a son was sleeping at the time. When Officer Ruthford attempted to secure the ball it dropped down between the weatherboarding and plaster.

It is not known who the perpetrator of the cowardly act is but it is hoped he will be apprehended and severely punished for his offense.

N. B.—Since writing the above George Rowe acknowledged that he did the shooting; that he shot at a cat and the ball struck on something and glanced and hit the dwelling.—Advance.

A fire at Matewan, which broke out about three o'clock Friday morning threatened the bigger portion of the town and it was by hard work that the flames were prevented from spreading.

The buildings destroyed were two large frame buildings owned by Mrs. Musick, who conducted a boarding house in one of them. The fire was discovered about three o'clock and had gained considerable headway when the citizens were aroused. The flames spread to the large mercantile building of G. R. Buskirk and those who were fighting the fire were exceedingly fortunate in preventing the destruction of this building. Not a great deal of damage was done the Buskirk building. It is said. Had the fire in this building got beyond control it would no doubt have spread to buildings across the street and this would have meant the destruction of the principal business portion of the town.

OBITUARY.

William Wellman was born October the 13th, 1856, died October 20, 1906, aged 50 years and 7 days. He died of consumption. For several years he had been very sick and at last death relieved him of suffering. He went to dwell with the angels, as a short time before his departure Rev. Martin Berry and the writer held services and took him to the water and baptised him. He manifested a desire that he would soon be safe in heaven.

A large crowd of people witnessed his funeral.

He raised a large and respectable family. Let us all prepare to meet him in Heaven. His body was laid to rest in the Large graveyard to await the resurrection morning.

Rev. T. H. Larve.

What Would You Do

If three good physicians should pronounce your case hopeless. If they should decide that you could not live longer than six weeks. And if you should get well, after using only $12.00 worth of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nerve, what would you advise a friend in like condition to do?

"I have to thank you for saving my wife's life two years ago. We had continued with the doctor until the third doctor, like the two previous ones, said that nothing could be done for her, that she had better be taken home from the hospital to quietly wait her time, which would not be over 6 weeks at the most. I brought her home, and then I thought probably Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nerve might help her, so I got a bottle of each and some Nerve and Liver Pills and commenced to give them to her. We soon seen an improvement, and encouraged by this we continued giving the medicine. We gave her eleven bottles in all of the medicine. She takes it occasionally now if she feels the need. I am in the ministry, and have been for 44 years."

REV. P. MILLIGAN,
Genda Springs, Kans.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails he will refund your money.
